About 20,000 fans, one of the largest Monday crowds that ever witnessew a baseball game in this country, excluding holiday contests, of course, watched the champion Dodgers trounce the Giants at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon in the first game of the season between the two local clubs. The setback dropped McGraw's outfit from first place into third position in the league standing. The final score was 4 to 1.

The contest was marked by intense * rivalry among the players, and both teams fought every inch of the way, but the Giants did not have much of a hance after the third inning, when Bernie Neis clinched the decision wit home run to deep center field. The victory of the Brooklynites can be directly attributed to the timely hitting of Jimmy Johnston and to the masterly pitching of Walter Ruether while the defeat of the Manhattanites was due to their inability to hit in the pinches and to the poor work of Nehf who was unsteady from the outset.

Ruether Pitches Well

Ruether Pitches Well

Ruether was in rare form. With the exception of the second inning, when he was found for three hits, he was complete master of the situation. He allowed only five other safeties and kept these scattered. He issued only one base on balls, which came in the fourth inning with two out, but he tightened up nicely and retired the side by fanning Ryan.

Nehf was bumped for five hits, including a double, a triple and a home run, before he was taken out in favor of Bill Ryan in the third inning. The former Holy Cross twirler fared much better than his left-handed predecessor and yielded only one hit until he was removed in favor of a pinch hitter in the seventh. Sheriff Slim Callee finished the game, and although he was nicked for one safety in each of the last two innings, only six batters faced him.

Long George Kelly, who has been hitting the ball with a vengeance since the start of the season, contributed only a mere single yesterday. Every time Kelly came to bat the Brooklyn outfielders started migrating toward the fence. Long George fanned ignominiously in the first inning and again in the fourth, but he fooled Zack Wheat in the sixth by dumping a short fly in left field for a single.

For the second successive day limmy Johnston and his bat were in the limelight. He connected for two singles and a triple in four trips to the plate.

Kelly Fails in Pinch

The Gients had a chance to take the lead in the first inning, but Kelly squelched the uprising by striking out at the critical moment. After Burns had poppep to Kilduff and Bancroft had raised one to Olson, Frisch was hit on the shoulder by a pitched ball, and King came through with a single past Kilduff, but both runners were left stranded when Kelly failed to connect.

New York University settled this year's diamond differences with Columbia by taking the long end of a 15-5 score in yesterday's clash at South Field. Incidentally, the Violet team wiped out any hope the Morningsiders had for the metropolitan collegiate diamond championship. The visitors led all the way. Nine Columbia errors and all the way.

Star Boxman Bumped for 5 Runs in Last Two Innings; Senators Win, 5-3

By Charles A. Taylor

After pitching seven hitless Inning against the Senators at the Polo Grounds yesterday, Carl Mays, the underhand ace of the Yankees, weakened along with his infield and away went . As you spring along another ball game from the clutches of the New Yorkers. The final score these fine bright days. in favor of the visitors from the na. Wear an overcoat over tional capital was 5 to 8.

The poor playing of Chick Fewster at econd base undoubted. second base undoubtedly tended to upset Mays, who was retiring the Wash- ing off-for the same reaington men in one-two-three order in son an athlete does his practically every inning until Chick sweater! began a series of three fumbles.

began a series of three fumbles.

Babe Ruth celebrated his return to the home field by making his fifth home run of the season, and off no less a pitching marvel than Walter Johnson the Great. In the first inning the Babe met the first ball that Johnson speeded up at him with one of his famous swings and the ball shot like a whizzing skyrocket up against the roof of the grand stand in right and rebounded to the field near first base, tearing a frightful hole in Henry Fabian's choicest sod.

This one run constituted the only score of the game until the fourth, when the Mankees added two more tallies. It was a streak of wildness on the part of Walter the Great that was primarily responsible for the run-making. The noted speed king lost all semblance of control for the time and walked both Peckinpaugh and Ruth, the first two men to face him. Wally Pipp sacrificed and was safe at first when Johnson vainly threw to third to head off Peckinpaugh.

Meusel and Bodie Fail

Meusel and Bodie Fail

With all the bases occupied and nobody out things looked most promising for a goodly bunch of runs. Bob Meusel, however, was unequal to the occasion and fanned for the second time in succession. Ping Pizzola, the next batter, expended all his ponderous energy in a foul down the third base line that nearly carried off one of Peckinpaugh's legs. After this effort the best Ping could accomplish was to hit weakly to Judge, who tossed out Peckinpaugh at the plate.

Two men were now disposed of, and Meusel and Bodie Fail

Two men were now disposed of, and it appeared as if Walter J. was going to crawl out of his predicament, but Aaron Ward changed the entire picture with a single to left, which scored Ruth and Pipp. Bodie was chased down in an attempt to reach third, after Ward had run the Italian off second.

A Sixth Sense?

Scientists often say sobut disagree about its character. From observation we've reached a conclusion on the subject, too.

We believe men have a very definite sense of selection by which they express natural preferences.

We've seen it function often in matters of style -have noted how men gravitate toward particular models.

Our Exeter model suit, for instance, is the preferred style of collegians, Alumni and

In its strictly English style they find a certain smartness of line which they intuitively prefer.
